It houses the largest collections of art in the Visayas. The museum is likewise the first Megaworld-built museum in the Philippines.

The museum is housed at the Casa de Emperador (Emperor's House) where it shares to the soon to open Brandy Museum, the city's first brandy museum, by Emperador brandy in the real estate giant Megaworld's Iloilo Business Park township in Mandurriao, Iloilo City.

Bryan Liao is a visual artist based in San Jose, Antique. He has had three solo exhibitions and participated in a number of group exhibitions in the region. The interplay of light and shadow and concepts of holism currently interest him and are reflected in his work.

Bryan Liao is known for his woodwork art pieces and abstract assemblages. His works usually combine wood blocks, concrete, and metal, as revealed by a centerpiece entitled Unknown Ground, a 2020 wood and plastic figure on show. It is an eye-catching and interesting assembly of an artist.

The art of Bryan Liao is described as pieces that explore the aesthetic of light and shadows on wood surfaces. It is also noted that his works somehow blurs the distinction between a painting and the notions of sculpture.
