Irina Kulikova can make the guitar do things that surprise even the guitar. She's been a guitar virtuoso since she was 12 years old. The now-35-year-old is coming to the Bay Area for the first time. She has performed Chopin, Bach and other classics all over the globe and racked up awards, first-prize ribbons, critical acclaim and, of course, the hearts of audiences on four out of seven continents (four out of six, if you don't count Antarctica). You can't spell "Tansman Variations" without I-R-I-N-A! She didn't write the book on classical guitar, but she's featured in a paragraph or two.
