

Born in a small town in Haryana, Samalkha, Janhavi Panwar came to be known as the 'Wonder Girl of India' at the age of 10 for her extraordinary language skills. Today, the 18-year-old speaks nine different accents, and five different languages, and is a digital tutor and motivational speaker. She holds a bachelor's degree in Arts from Satyawati College in Delhi and is currently pursuing her master's in English Literature. Here's what Janhavi's motivational life can teach you:

1. It was Panwar's father who dreamt of giving the best opportunities and social skills to his daughter and worked extremely hard to train her in the English language from a very young age. She too respects her parents a lot and wants to live with the same values as theirs.
2. Her parents have presented a strong example against gender discrimination by providing her with good education and opportunities.
3. She has proved that age is just a number. She is one of the youngest graduates in the world, having got her bachelor's degree at the age of 13.
4. Panwar's journey shows one should not deter from their goals because of others' opinions. The young wonder was once mocked for learning English by her neighbours & friends.
5. Panwar believes that criticism teaches you more than appreciation. It teaches you how to better yourself each day.
6. One should mute the demotivational voices to success. What others think of you can't define your journey.
7. She values the power of experience. She reckons that you learn something new each day and evolve with those experiences.
8. Panwar values failure. You can fail once, you can fail twice, but eventually, you will succeed because of the experiences you have gained.
9. She says that social skills are as important as academic knowledge. She wouldn't have been able to learn fluent spoken English had she not started conversing with foreigners confidently from a young age.
10. Panwar asks people to step out of their comfort zones & homes to learn something new.

11. For Panwar, practical knowledge trumps textbook instructions. She feels that people should keep practising their skills in social situations to improve them.
12. She thinks that your conditions shouldn't define your goals but your decisions.
13. Confidence and self-worth are crucial to success says the young achiever who spoke in front of 150 IAS officers at the age of 12 and anchored with BBC while still at college.
14. She thinks one should not revert to criticism by giving explanations. But one should show their worth through hard work and success.
15. Panwar shows the power of resilience, hard work, and self-worth through her inspirational journey.
