

The amazing women I met at Mills continually inspire me to be the best person I can be. Forging these extraordinary connections wouldn't have been possible without financial aid, which allowed me to attend the College. I give to Mills so current and future students can experience what I did. Truly, few things in life are as special as Mills sisterhood!

behind
every gift
there is a story

Each gift to the College has a story—about a life-path discovered at Mills and followed into the world, about lifelong friendships and inspiring mentors, about a voice found or strengthened. These are the stories you make possible for future generations when you give to Mills. Each gift really does count: college assessors, including U.S. News & World Report, consider graduates' giving an important measure of a learning community's excellence. Your gifts to Mills are a vote of confidence in the College's future.
