

Letter of Recommendation

To Whom It May Concern

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am pleased to write this reference letter for Oluwatobi Ayinde, who served as a Content Writer & Digital Media Strategist with Digital Network Africa. During his time with us, Oluwatobi consistently demonstrated exceptional creativity, professionalism, and a deep understanding of the African startup landscape.

Oluwatobi played a central role in developing and executing our editorial vision, particularly through his work on the Founders Feature series. He has a rare ability to uncover meaningful insights during interviews and translate them into compelling long-form stories that resonate with audiences. His storytelling is thoughtful, well-researched, and always aligned with our brand's voice and strategic objectives.

He collaborated closely with founders, ecosystem leaders, and internal teams to produce high-quality editorial content that strengthened our positioning as a trusted voice in the African innovation ecosystem. Oluwatobi also contributed significantly to our digital presence through strategic content planning, consistent execution, and a strong editorial calendar that supported the growth of our professional community.

What sets Oluwatobi apart is his sense of ownership, reliability, and genuine passion for impactful storytelling. He approaches every assignment with diligence, creativity, and a commitment to excellence. His ability to work independently while also being an effective collaborator made him a valuable member of our team.

I am confident that Oluwatobi will bring the same level of dedication and expertise to any organisation he joins. He has my full endorsement, and I highly recommend him for any role that requires strong writing, strategic communication, or digital content leadership.

If further information is required, please feel free to reach out.

Sincerely,
