Hi Sarah,

It's the beginning of another whirlwind week during awards season, and a particularly exciting one for our Frankly Spoken Productions community. We're thrilled to share that Just In Time has officially recouped its capitalization!

Not only is this a milestone moment for us, but JIT is the first musical at the Circle in the Square Theatre to recoup its production costs, with almost completely sold out performances and some of Broadway's highest ticket grosses since opening 14 months ago.

In short, this means that the show has broken even, and production is able to repay investors (like many of you!) in full, and begin sharing profits with them—which is especially promising as we get ready for the 2027 Just In Time North American tour.

And back at the Circle in the Square Theatre, screen and stage star Isa Briones (The Pitt) is preparing to take her final bow as the heart-stopping, chart-topping Connie Francis. She'll play her last performance on Friday, May 29th before passing the pin curls on to Olivia Holt (Kickin' It, Cloak & Dagger), who will begin her run as Connie on Saturday, May 30th.

Thank you for coming along on this journey with us. Each one of you has already helped us achieve some of our wildest dreams, and we can't wait for you to see what else we have in store!

Gratefully yours,
