David Hockney is a British painter and photographer credited for his contribution to the pop art movement in the 1960's. Hockney is considered to be one of the most influential British artists of the 20th century.

Hockney began creating his pictorial collages in 1980's, naming the intricate pieces "joiners". His earlier collages consisted of grid-like compositions made up from Polaroid photographs.

Hockney's photo collection are made up of numerous photos all pieced together to create one portrait. With the medium of a film camera, the contrast between old and modern regarding the film and print style evokes a sense of nostalgia in his work.

Hockney created portraits of art but also winning
