

ANNOUNCEMENT: New Ideas coming to THIS webpage

As a result of my ultimate passion for sports, it has led me here. Writing my own articles. But today, we go one step further...

I am herby announcing that along with occasional reports, a new series of Magazines will be launching. These will range from a variety of sports and even general knowledge topics. I am so excited to be getting started with this new concept – it is a step into the unknown, but with your support we can do it!

So far I have brainstormed a few ideas:

- Monthly review of F1 – This will consist of all things F1 such as news, rumours, race reports and hopefully (if I can secure them) some interviews with people “in the know” or even fans like you!
- A review of the Ashes in the summer – This one is exciting. Staged to be one of the greatest Ashes series in recent time, Australia visit England for the first time under Brendon McCullum.
- End of Season Premier League Review – An annual with reviews of all teams and how they did.
- Space?!?! – I have always been fascinated by space and was thinking about a magazine about space travel, mars or even the ISS (Seen as it is being de-commissioned)

Whatever you think, let me know your thoughts!

See you all soon... The future is Bright
