

27 Things I've Learned in 27 Years

1. Expensive body wash may be a scam, but the happiness it brings is authentic.
2. Try to be nice when someone hard launches their significant other. If you don't have anything nice to say, send it in the groupchat without a caption.
3. It's okay to interrupt men at any point and for any reason.
4. A first date should be like a call with your grandma. You only talk about yourself and it ends abruptly when your political views don't align.
5. You can be grateful and unsatisfied at the same time.
6. Any taxi you call could be the Cash Cab. Stay alert and informed.
7. When you run out of room in your closet, it doesn't mean you have to stop buying clothes. When God closes a closet, he opens a pile on the foot of your bed.
8. Stay away from exposed live wires.
9. If you listen to All Too Well (10 Minute Version) seven times on a walk you'll have walked about 4 miles
10. Drinking alone before a first date doesn't count as drinking alone.
11. "Thanks, I was born with it" is a perfectly acceptable response when receiving a complement
12. It's okay to watch the same 3 TV shows over and over. Repetition is the mother of skill.
13. You can go your entire life without owning an umbrella.
14. When you go to karaoke, bring different levels of talent along. If everyone else is bad, it looks staged. If everyone else is good, well, you should probably sit this one out.

15. Be kind to your baby blanket, it's their first time living too.
16. Book covers can be very informative. Judge away!
17. You're single on your birthday. Do with that what you will.
18. Download as many apps as you can and keep them forever.
Remember flappy bird?
19. The only place you can't wear fishnets is in a church.
20. Everyone should have a bob at some point in their life.
21. Get as close to your coworkers as you can. Physically and emotionally.
22. If you believe that everyone is in love with you, you're bound to be right eventually.
23. It's okay to be a little scared when your friends get engaged.
24. People usually forget about Venmo when they block you on everything.
25. Plastic water bottles can be refilled for up to 4 months before you have to throw them away.
26. Merch lines are the only lines worth waiting in.
27. Be cautious of people who don't like musical theater.