Report Summary

NOTICE: The information contained below is from a fictional person. Actual reports may contain more or less information. Not all reports will contain data in all fields. All product names, logos, brands, trademarks and registered trademarks are property of their respective owners.

What's in this section:

At the top of a Person Report, you'll find a name and current address for the report subject. This is also where the Report Summary will appear. This section highlights some of the key data points featured in the report.

? How to use Report Summary section:

This is a helpful tool to quickly understand which report sections you'll find the most useful or interesting.

- You also can click on any of the elements in the Report Summary, and you'll be taken directly to the section of the report where the data point is featured.
- For example, if a Report Summary features the tab "Potential Financial Troubles," you can click on the blue box, and you will jump down to the Finances section of the report, where you may find possible bankruptcies and liens.

? How to use Personal Information section:

- The Personal Information section is a great place to start to get basic information on the report subject. If you're uncertain if you've opened the correct report, you likely will be able to determine if the report belongs to the person you're searching for from the information featured in this section.
- This is handy if you're trying to find an old friend or family member. Do the possible images look like them? Does their age match up? What about the education and employment history? Do you recognize any of the possible relatives or associates?
- If you've never met your search subject – for example, if you're researching a potential date you met online – you can often use the information, found here to help gauge whether they've been honest with you about key details (age, images, where they work or went to school, etc.)

? How to use Contact Information section:

- Would you like to reach out to an old friend but misplaced their contact details? Find or confirm contact information in one place.
- You can also utilize this section if you're organizing an event for your child's school or building-out a class phone tree.
- Rather than reach out to everyone individually to confirm their email address or phone number, lean on TruthFinder to find the contact information you need.

Location History

What's in this section:

The Location History section is where you'll find locations related to the report subject. Locations listed may include:

- Current residence
- Past residences
- Places of Work

? How to use Location History section:

- Are you sending out wedding invitations or holiday cards? Double-check you have the most up-to-date address information for all your family members and friends.
- Remember, with a TruthFinder membership you get access to unlimited reports so you can find an address for everyone on your list for no extra charge!
- You can also look to the Location History section to see if someone is being honest with you about where they are located. Did an online seller claim to live 5 miles away, but only has locations listed out of state? They may be a scammer. Perhaps someone you matched with on an online dating site doesn't appear to live in the neighborhood they claimed to. It may be worth steering clear and not meeting up in person.

? How to use Criminal and Traffic Records section:

The Criminal and Traffic Records section is a great place to start if you're looking to gauge whether someone is a safe and trustworthy person to associate with.

- This could be a new parent who joined your child's carpool, a potential romantic partner, a family member who recently re-entered your life, a neighbor who moved in across the street, or someone else who's entered your personal life that you'd like to learn more about.
- It is also a helpful tool to find out if someone has been arrested. Rather than file multiple public records requests or search various databases, find records with one simple search.

How to use Social Profiles section:

In the digital age, someone's social media presence can say a lot about someone. Having quick access to someone's social profiles in one place can make it simple to take a digital deep dive into a friend, family member, or partner.

- Pursue through an old friend or family member's social media feeds to get a sense of what they've been up to since you last saw them.
- TruthFinder may help you discover hard-to-find profiles that someone was trying to keep under wraps. Does their second Instagram account show that your new love interest is actually already married? Is your family member running a side hustle through social media?

? How to use Finances section:

- The Finances section can provide information that helps you to avoid possible scammers or individuals you should be careful with money around. Unfortunately, online dating has helped romance scammers connect with a wide net of potential victims. Do a little digging before you get heavily involved with someone. Multiple bankruptcies, evictions, or civil judgments concerning money may be major red flags.
- This section could also give you a better perspective of the financial standing of your friends or family. While you should always be wary about lending people money when they are in a pinch, a little digging on TruthFinder could provide even more information on someone's financial situation and help you decide when it's best to keep money out of your relationships.

Assets

What's in this section:

In the Assets section of a Person Report you'll find any asset information TruthFinder found on the report subject. Possible asset data may include:

- Properties Owned
- Vehicles Owned or Driven
- Aircrafts Owned
- Watercraft Owned

? How to use Assets section:

You can actually learn a lot about someone's assets from public records.

- The Assets section can be used to perform an online asset search on a potential date or romantic partner. This can be particularly helpful if you don't have access to bank statements or other personal financial information for someone (which you likely don't if you just started dating). If you are wary they are lying about their assets and financial status, TruthFinder may be able to help.
- You may also consider using the Asset section to learn more about the net worth of a friend, neighbor, or coworker. Perhaps they've been boasting about their multiple properties, boats, planes, etc, and you'd like to check out their claims. While the asset section won't give a complete picture of someone's net worth, it is a good place to start.
