

HOW TO DESIGN A LIVING ROOM WALL

Published on: Sep 14, 2018 @ 13:52

In most homes, the living room is where we mostly spend our off time relaxing and visiting with family and friends. With this in mind, I'm sure you'd like to make your living room more hospitable and inviting. You can do this by creating a living room theme. With any decorating idea, you may wonder how to design a living room wall (<https://www.limitlesswalls.com/wall-murals/collections/designers.html>). Here we'll provide some ideas to give you a starting point to add some much-needed ambiance to your living room.

First, think about the theme you'd like to have in your living room. Do you want to coordinate with the theme in the rest of the house? Or would you like to have a unique look in each room? Most homeowners want to keep a fluid theme throughout the structure, but it is acceptable, and even fun to have random styles or themes for each room. Think of it like an individual painting waiting to reveal its true potential.

Once you've chosen the theme, you'll want to consider the colors you use. The theme will most likely dictate what colors you use in your living room. Do you want cool and relaxing? Try some blues and greens. Do you want something friendly and inviting. Think of cheery colors like yellow and orange. Or put your mind at ease. Maybe you'd like to neutralize the room with white and apple red to give your living room some warmth.

Furniture and accessories can make the room more comfortable. Paintings, or pictures, any of these items can

If you are a lover of the printed word and find yourself with the lion's share of books, or could open a small branch library by yourself, then shelving might be the right look for you. Bookshelves don't have to look like dusty old libraries from your childhood. There are tons of different looks available. From standard wooden shelves in a ton of woods and finishes to metal and even plastic, the choices are endless. Another option is whether you want built-in bookshelves, freestanding, or some that will hang on the walls. Each style has its pros and cons but how you want to use them will help determine the type for your living room. If you have a few ugly or worn book covers, trying making some coordinating book covers out of wrapping paper, material, or scraps of wallpaper. You can artfully display your literary treasure if its worn and well-loved.

Perhaps you have several books that are just too beautiful to put on a shelf. This is where your coffee table comes into play. Choose some of the more artistic or enticing book covers and arrange them on your coffee table. This not only adds some unexpected artwork but gives your family or visitors something to browse through while enjoying some conversation.

An Artistic Statement

If you have a rather large painting or print, why not use its palette to tie your living room décor together. Take a closer look at the colors first. Perhaps pick one or two colors that would be complimentary and paint your main wall, or the entire room with that color. Or take one of those colors and paint the wall that your painting will rest on, then paint the rest of the room the other color. You don't have to have a single color scheme to decorate your living room wall. Make this room your own. Use your own taste to express your interpretation of the perfect living room.

You can also take the style of the painting or print to help determine the decorating style of the rest of the room. Have a modern print? Try some abstract stencil patterns on the wall to excite the eyes. Or take an understated pattern in a wallpaper. It's an easy way to add color, patterns, and give your room a defining theme. How you design your living room wall (<https://www.limitlesswalls.com/wall-murals.html>) is your personal statement. Use a pattern that yells, "Come in and sit a spell."

Large Scale Design

Speaking of wallpaper, if patterns aren't really your style, have you considered a wall mural when it comes to how you design your living room wall (<https://www.limitlesswalls.com/wall-murals.html>)? Whether you use your own image or choose from the hundreds of choices Limitless Walls have, there's bound to be something to make the right statement or set the desired mood for your living room wall. From your chosen wall mural, if you use a large image, then consider adding smaller details on that wall, or just allow the mural to be your perfect décor. If you choose a pattern, such as stripes try using simpler lines when hanging other pictures or decorative items. You don't want the two to clash.

Another fun and yet stylish choice is to use one of our textured patterns

(<https://www.limitlesswalls.com/wall-murals/collections/texture.html>). Here we have a nice selection of stone or brick patterns that will cozy up any living room and add a dash of class and warmth. Who says you need to install brick or stone façade in your home? We have the perfect solution, especially when you want a change, just simply remove it and move it to another room. Voila! Instant room upgrade.

Photographer's Studio

Nothing makes a statement more about how important your friends or family are than pictures of them. If you have tons of photos, try taking some of these important photos and placing them in frames of all sizes, but a uniform color. Then place these frames in clusters either on their own or around other artwork or lighting. The singular color unifies all the different shapes of photos while tying in your color scheme. Or for a more bohemian look, frame your pictures in many frame styles and colors. Try this style against a lighter single-colored wall for added effect.

Showing Off Your Green Thumb

(<https://www.limitlesswalls.com/wp/wp-content/uploads/2018/08/plants.jpg>)

Even if your green thumb is more black than green, a stylish pattern featuring plants or vegetation will help you design your living room wall (<https://www.limitlesswalls.com/wall-murals/collections/forest-and-trees.html>). If you choose a pattern with plants or flowers, try finding some real plants (or silk ones if your thumb is really black) to dot the room and tie in your wall theme. Take one of our forest murals then paint the remaining walls a complementary color to unify your look. Or for a fun bamboo look, why not use some bamboo flooring or mats to add a splash of fun to your room.

The sky's the limit when it comes to decorating items. With a bit of imagination, creativity, and playfulness, you can design your living room wall as a masterpiece or an extension of your personality. Just let the ideas flow.
