

“New Year’s RVing Resolutions”

Everybody loves making—and breaking—New Year’s resolutions. What are yours?

If you’re still working on your list, here are five for you to consider. If you try to keep them, you can make 2018 your best RV travel year yet!

Resolution #1: Take more trips. The United States is covered from coast to coast in amazing, RV-friendly destinations. Create a travel list and start crossing places off. The memories you create will be worth the world to you. Worthwhile destinations may even be closer to home than you think!

Resolution #2: Be spontaneous. Have you ever seen a small town with a funny name on an interstate sign and wondered what you’d find there? Seen a detour you’re looking for an excuse to take? Don’t wait any longer! You might just discover your new favorite spot.

Resolution #3: Try new food options. When we travel, many of us tend to look for the consistency of the familiar. This year, we’re challenging you to step outside of the norm and try new places. At every stop, make it a game to find the most unique restaurant in town! If you prefer to cook, take a break from your usual RV staple meals to prepare something new and different.

Resolution #4: Stay on top of RV maintenance. Treat your RV right and it will stay in top shape for you. Treating problems early helps you avoid major repairs. Keep your motor home tuned and cleaned to ensure a superb year for you and your RV.

Resolution #5: Enjoy cosmic spectacle. No matter whereabout you find yourself, sunsets and sunrises are breathtakingly beautiful. Make it a point to set time aside to take them in. Did you know that over 10,000 stars are visible to the naked eye? Once you get away from the cities and their light pollution, you can see them all. Now that's a stellar goal!

Whether you follow them all or just a few, it's our pleasure to provide tips for better RV travel.
