Find an Auto Insurance Policy and Get Coverage for the Following

Text:

- Bodily Injury: This is liability coverage for injuries you cause to someone else. Your state may have minimum required coverage amounts, but you may choose to carry higher limits in order to protect your assets from claims exceeding that amount.
- Medical Payments: Medical payment coverage, also known as Personal Injury Protection (PIP), covers your injuries, as well as injuries to passengers riding in your car. This coverage often also covers lost wages and even funeral expenses in the event of a worst-case scenario.
- Collision Coverage: This is coverage for damage to your own vehicle in the event of a collision with an object or other car, from flipping over, and even damage caused by potholes. Collision coverage can reimburse you for repairs to your own vehicle, even if you're at fault for an accident.
- Comprehensive Coverage: Comprehensive coverage reimburses you for a loss due to theft or damage not caused by a collision, such as fire, falling objects, floods, riots, and even impacting with animals such as deer. Comprehensive coverage often includes coverage for cracked or shattered windshields, as well.
- Uninsured and Underinsured Motorist Coverage: Not everyone will carry adequate insurance coverage to fully cover your total loss. If you're involved in an auto accident where the person at fault has no or insufficient insurance, this coverage will reimburse you for your loss. This coverage can also protect you against hit-and-run drivers, and even cover you if you are hit as a pedestrian.

Protect Your Home or Apartment

Text: Your home is one of the biggest investments you'll ever make. This means it's incredibly important to protect it from potential issues. Homeowners insurance can help cover damage caused by natural disasters, vandalism, theft, falling objects, and vehicles of all sorts. They don't, however, often protect from flooding or earthquakes; these insurance policies are often added to a home insurance policy for additional protection.

Perhaps you don't own a home and are instead renting a property. Renters insurance is often required and can protect you from loss due to things such as theft, fire, and vandalism. At Dillard Insurance Agency, we can help clients near El Dorado Hills, CA, with both home and renters insurance. If you'd like to request assistance, then consider reaching out today for a free consultation.
