Chet is not feeling himself anymore ever since he lost his centaur hindquarters. He has a hard time adjusting to walking on just two legs. He goes into a depressive mope even though Julie and Selena try to cheer him up and help him out. They are determined to get back at the vile magician, but they need to find him first.

During the Homecoming Parade it seems they just might get that chance. Will Chet step up to the plate?

Once again a great issue of Moonstruck! I am still loving this series so much and eager to find out what will happen next. It is sweet yet action packed this time around. I love the development of the relationship between Selena and Julie, they do make the best couple around! And you end up feeling miserable alongside with Chet. Glad to see Cass take on a more active part in the story. She is adorable. I love how much this comic pulls you in and has you thinking and feeling along with everyone else.

The art remains beautiful and inviting. A kind and welcoming environment.

The comic is full of bonus material as always: a note from the creators, fan art, the Moonstruck Missives, Ask a Know-it-All and a Well Met By Moonlight interview.

Of course Moonstruck wouldn't be Moonstruck if we didn't have a new installment of Pleasant Mountain Sisters to enjoy along the main story. Is it me or is that also becoming a super interesting little story?

Overall, I still must insist that you give this series a try. It is a great read and the bonus material makes it so much better in my opinion. Go on, go get it, I'll wait...
