Garfield and Grumpy Cat both notorious for wanting to be left alone to sleep. They never met, and never intend to do so thank you very much! But that is not what a mogul in Pet Stores has in mind. He came up with a crazy plan to make cats be more like dogs. To test that theory he needs two of the most uncooperative cats in the world...That's right... Garfield and Grumpy Cat. Will he succeed in his dastardly plan?

Finally! The moment we have all been waiting for has arrived! Grumpy Cat and Garfield united! It is everything I wanted it to be and more. The story they are playing a part in seems very interesting too. How will they respond to being manipulated into behaving like dogs? Will they be saved in time? Funny how much suspense such a simple story can generate!

The art is also quite special as we all know Garfield for many years now and he has very cartoonish features, then we have Grumpy Cat who is based on a real cat of course and that changes the art somewhat to reflect a more realistic cat. But I like the mix of both styles of art. The long established and the new. It works. And it is interesting to see how it is done as well. I do like the first few pages where we meet both cats in their own environment and we sort of compare them to one another. That is where the art difference is the most apparent. And still I like it.

I am of course very eager to see how this story will unfold and if Garfield and Grumpy Cat will eventually come to like one another (although that seems very unlikely at this point in time). If you are a cat lover, Garfield lover, Grumpy Cat lover or even a mere lasagna lover, I would suggest you pick up a copy of this great start of a wonderful story featuring two of the most well known felines in the world!
