

Test - 🌑 Get ready to embrace the dark side with this new feature 🌑

1 message

sarah@skritter.com <sarah@skritter.com>

Reply-To: sarah@skritter.com

To: sarah@skritter.com

Fri, Apr 28, 2023 at 3:04 PM

Hi Skritizens! Are you tired of straining your eyes in the dark? Well, we have a much-anticipated surprise for you! Dark Mode is now available for beta testing in our app. Now you can say bye-bye to eye strain during your late-night studies! 🌑

At the moment, you need to manually enable Dark Mode in-app. To activate it, simply go to your user settings and toggle the neo (dark) theme.

We know that not all beta features are perfect, so if you come across any bugs, glitches, or improvements, please let us know at team@skritter.com! We're always looking for ways to improve our platform and your feedback is essential to that process.

Skritter

New Blog Post!

LEARNING A LOT OF CHINESE CHARACTERS IN SKRITTER

How many Chinese characters do you need to learn to be able to understand normal texts written for native speakers?

2,000? 3,500? 5,000? 7,000?

This question is hard to answer for two reasons. First, in modern Skritter team member Olle recently released a new blog post: Learning A Lot of Chinese Characters in Skritter. In this article, he discusses useful goals for those who want to understand normal texts written by native speakers.

While focusing on the sheer number of characters is not advisable for most learners, this can be a motivating goal for some students. If this is an achievement that you would like to reach, we recommend that you read the 5 things to keep in mind when going beyond 5,000 characters.

Just a reminder, a Skritter subscription gives you access to both Chinese and Japanese. Message us at team@skritter.com if you have any questions!

That's all for now, but stay tuned for future updates. Happy studies!

-The Skritter Team

Website | Contact | Documentation

You are receiving this email because you have an account with Skritter opted in to promotional emails.

© Inkren, Inc. 580 California St. Suite 1200, San Francisco, CA 94104 USA

Unsubscribe - Unsubscribe Preferences