Buying Guide for Window Cleaning Tools

Vitaliy Hrabar/Shutterstock.com

Why buy window cleaning tools?

Having window cleaning tools on hand makes sense if you want quick but thorough cleaning.

Microfiber cloths, cushioned scrubber heads, and squeegees can help achieve a streak-free polish. Plus, a window cleaning tool saves you money because you often won't have to use as much cleaning solution. Finally, the fewer plastic bottled products you buy, the less waste you make.

What should you look for in window cleaning tools?

- Design: A window cleaning tool could be anything from a simple microfiber towel to a telescopic pole with several cleaner head attachments. There are designs galore to choose from. You probably want a cleaner with an extendable pole to adjust for different window heights for indoor and outdoor windows. Then there's the head type to consider. Squeegees make window cleaning super fast, as the rubber blade doesn't absorb water. Then again, a simple microfiber towel does wonders on glass, requires little water, and fits in a purse or glove compartment.
- Extras: Nearly all the products we review come with accessories of one type or another. The question is a simple matter of what you want and need. There are kits complete with an extendable pole and switchable heads. Even a simple microfiber towel may come with a microfiber polisher. Just keep an eye out as you browse.
- Usability: If all you need is a compact window cleaning tool for your car, you can pass on professional-grade window cleaners designed for high outdoor and indoor windows. Similarly, a single microfiber towel may not be the best choice if you need to reach higher windows in your home. The urge to buy the gadget with the most features is not uncommon, window cleaners included. Consider what type of window cleaning tool would be most useful for you.

Should you also use a window-cleaning liquid solution with the tool?

It depends. The window cleaning products we review here are designed to remove light debris and dust and to achieve a crystal-clear, streak-free shine. They're great for regular cleanings. However, if you're dealing with substantial dirt or bird droppings, you may need to use a liquid cleaning solution and sponge first to target those problem areas. Then, rinse the area with water and use a squeegee or microfiber pad to get that clean shine.
