

The Colors of Us

What if a simple box of crayons could teach us one of life's most beautiful lessons?

When young Esther sits with her Grampa Joseph and spills a box of crayons, she discovers that each color tells a story and celebrates our diversity.

Through playful conversation and gentle wisdom, Grampa Joseph helps Esther see that just like crayons, people come in many colors, each created by God with care and purpose.

From the joy of green grapes to the brown sweetness of chocolate and the red of strawberries, every shade becomes a reminder of how our differences make the world richer and more complete.

The Colors of Us is a heartwarming story of faith, family, and acceptance, a tender celebration of diversity and unity through the eyes of a child.

Perfect for parents, teachers, and anyone who wants to share the message that God made every color...and every person perfectly.

Created & Written
By. C. Moczygemba

Co-written by
Yolanda B. Allen

Illustrated by
Ben Moczygemba