

The Waves

By Mayson Taylor

Water fills up my lungs Engulfed by the words,
That I start to hear

Waves start to crash into me Resentment completely, submerging my body

The things that I lost beneath the brine
of what once was,

Now we have come apart
Washed up, Beached completely onto shore

The salt chokes me
leaving my mouth dry Speechless about what I can't say

I miss the calmness of what I once loved The steadiness of the ocean that used to bring me comfort

What felt like my forever was ended in a moment, Causing my world to be overtaken by a tsunami of emotions

You can't be the one To rescue me anymore,
But please,
 Just one more time?