February is
African American
Heritage Month

Today we celebrate the Black and African American pioneers who broke barriers, fought discrimination and followed their passions to build trailblazing careers in medicine. Their research and discoveries have made a profound impact on healthcare and all of our lives. Visit www.aamc.org/news-insights/celebrating-10-african-american-medical-pioneers to learn a few of their stories.

June 2023 – Juneteenth

Juneteenth is both a celebration of liberty and a reminder that liberty is not always a fast or easy process. On June 19, 1865, enslaved African Americans in Galveston, Texas, learned that they were free—over 2 years after Abraham Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation. While that day marks the official end of slavery in the United States, it's important to remember that there's still work to be done to achieve a truly equitable society. #Juneteenth

October 2023 – Hispanic Heritage Month

Jose Celso Barbosa graduated from the University of Michigan in 1880—the first Puerto Rican to earn a medical degree in the U.S. Early in his career, he made his mark on medicine and public health by developing an early form of health insurance. Decades later, Dr. Helen Rodríguez-Trías helped end the practice of coerced sterilization for marginalized people and worked to establish standards of care for women and children with AIDS.
