

A YEAR OF HOPE

GIVING TUESDAY

Good morning,

Today is Giving Tuesday, and we begin with gratitude. Before any goals, before any updates, we want to honor you.

Every moment of relief a woman felt this year, every warm meal, every safe home, and every ride to treatment was possible because of this community of caring people.

This morning we celebrate;

our donors

our supporters

our volunteers

and the strength of every woman who allowed us to walk beside her.

We also hold close the memory of a few beautiful souls we lost in the past year. Their compassion shaped our mission, and their legacy continues in every act of kindness.

With love and gratitude,

Michelle Power

In Honor and In Loving Memory

This year we also hold close the memory of a few remarkable women who are no longer with us. Their compassion, leadership, and belief in our mission shaped Pawsitively 4 Pink in ways that continue to touch every woman we serve.

Their legacy lives on in every act of kindness shared today and in every moment of relief we are able to provide to women fighting breast cancer. We honor them with gratitude and love.

Practical, focused services lift breast cancer and paid tribute to those we've lost too soon.

Hi there,

Hi there,

We are excited to share something truly special happening in our community on Saturday, 29 November at 3 PM. The Trans-Siberian Orchestra is bringing their breathtaking holiday show to the DCU Center in Worcester, and they are using their spotlight to lift up women who are fighting breast cancer right here at home.

A portion of the proceeds from this performance will support Pawsitively 4 Pink, helping local women with the essential financial relief they need during treatment. This includes transportation, groceries, utilities, and everyday care. These are the moments when compassion matters most, and we are grateful for partners who choose to stand with us.

By joining us at the show, you are not only enjoying an unforgettable night of music and magic. You are giving hope. You are reminding a woman in our community that she is not alone. And you are helping us continue the work that keeps families supported during their hardest days.

Your night out becomes someone else's lifeline, and that is the true heart of this season.

With love and gratitude,

Michelle Power

Did You Know?

THE COST OF CANCER

Breast cancer doesn't just take a toll on the body, it can cost thousands in out-of-pocket expenses, even with insurance.

For many women, a cancer diagnosis isn't just about treatment; it's about tough choices. Treatment often means deciding between healing and paying rent, groceries, or utilities. The financial burden can be overwhelming and adds stress to an already difficult journey.

That's where Pawsitively 4 Pink steps in. We help ease those financial worries so women can focus on what truly matters: getting well.
