

6 Tech Trends Revolutionizing Travel in 2022

The travel sector has undergone a digital transformation, particularly accelerated by the pandemic's demand for contactless solutions. From digital room keys to virtual queues, here's how technology is reshaping our travel experiences in 2022.

Hotel Booking Apps with Room Selection

Major hotel chains are enhancing their apps with features like live chat and room selection. Hilton's app, for instance, now allows users to book connecting rooms and select specific rooms based on preferences.

Smartphones as the New Key Cards

Hotels are adopting smartphone technology for room access. Hyatt, for example, has integrated room keys into Apple Wallet, allowing guests to use their iPhones or Apple Watches as digital keys.

Virtual Queues: A Time-Saving Phenomenon

Biometric screening company Clear acquired Whyline to potentially improve virtual queue experiences at airports and other high-traffic areas, aiming to streamline processes like vaccine status checks.

Rethinking Room Service with Delivery Apps

Food delivery apps are offering alternatives to traditional room service. Hyatt's partnership with Gopuff delivers prepackaged and hot meals directly to hotel rooms, offering guests more dining options.

Automated Food Delivery in Airports

Robotic delivery is making its way into airports. AtYourGate, for example, has tested a robot delivery service at Los Angeles International Airport, delivering orders right to passengers' gates.

App-Driven Car Rentals: The New Frontier

Peer-to-peer car-sharing services like Getaround are offering more flexible car rental options. Cars can be booked and unlocked through an app, offering a more streamlined rental experience.

Maximizing Your Travel Rewards

When choosing a travel credit card, consider options that align with your preferences. Whether it's flexibility, no annual fee, or luxury perks, there's a card for every traveler.

Conclusion

The integration of technology into travel is not just a trend; it's a revolution that's here to stay. From booking to dining, every aspect of our travel journey is becoming more efficient, safer, and more enjoyable.
