

SPACE OF THE MONTH

Lean into Green

This kitchen gets cooking with a bold, tone-on-tone palette in a seriously on-trend shade.

BY LESLIE CORONA

Meet the Designer

REBECCA GIBBS

It's all about color in the kitchen right now, and this one in Abilene, Texas, is as saturated as they come. Catering to the homeowner's funky, cool tastes, Rebecca went all in with a green palette built around emerald tiles. "I didn't want the space to be overly bright. I wanted it to feel cozy and warm," she says. She chose a soft sage for the cupboards, which coordinates with the tile's grout, and wood floors and marble counters to balance out the green.

Get the Look

JUST BEAMING

Install wooden ceiling beams to add warmth and natural texture. Rebecca chose a super-pale shade of pink paint with brown undertones for the ceiling, as a surprising and softening touch.

COLOR THEORY

An all-green room might be a bit much. Mixing in neutral elements, like cream bar stools and wooden shelves, prevents color fatigue.

SET IN STONE

The backsplash above the stove, made of the same Carrara marble used for the countertops, breaks up the dark tiling, which otherwise could feel heavy.

TO BUY: Aubrey Counter Stool, $411; roveconcepts.com. Evergreen Star & Cross Tiles, $42 per sq. ft.; fireclaytile.com. Staggered Glass Chandelier, $599; westelm.com. Hummingbirds by Janet Hill, from $39; artfullywalls.com. Lupe Wall Sconce, $174; mitzi.com. Paint: Burma Jade; sherwin-williams.com for info. Teak Bowl, $70; cb2.com.

To help affix the artwork to the hood, Rebecca used Command Picture Hanging Strips.