The technology behind K-Way Jackets

The K-Lite Jacket

This is the perfect lightweight jacket to take you from Spring to Autumn and in fact, it can be worn all year round. Due to its ultra-lightweight, the K-Lite is highly compressible and can be stuffed into a small bag easily. Go from the city to the hiking trails with the K-Lite Jacket.

Not only is it a stylish jacket, but it is also a great insulator (600 fill power of down feathers) and provides protection from the wind with elasticated wrist cuffs and hem. Fill power is the measure of “fluffiness” of a down product. The higher the fill power, the more air a certain weight of the down can trap and thus insulate more effectively. Another great feature of the K-Lite jacket is its hypoallergenic quality down that prevents any potential allergic reactions to the down feathers. This stitch through garment construction is 100% nylon with a Cire finish and DWR water repellent. The K-lite is now available in a men’s bodywarmer however if any ladies would like a bodywarmer, the K-Way Signa Down Vest is a great option.

The Doug and Robin (previously Drake and Swan)

The K-Way Drake and Swan jackets have become a well-known staple in all Cape Union Mart customer wardrobes. We have rebranded these jackets to make way for the Doug and the Robin. Made of the same material and technology you have grown to love, but with an updated design.

The shell is 100% windproof and breathable which means not only does it block out the chilly wind, but it also prevents you from sweating as the material permeates vapour outwards. Why is sweating a bad thing? Sweating too rapidly due to your clothing can cool your core temperature down significantly which is not ideal in cold weather.

Speaking of snug, the Doug and Robin have a 650 fill power of white duck down. As mentioned above, fill power measures the “fluffiness” of a down and the higher the measurement, the more air the down can trap and insulate. If you have to go out in the rain or bad weather, the jacket has a water repellency to keep you dry.

When washing your K-Way jacket, always ensure that you wash it with Storm Down Wash which is available on our online shop and in our stores. If you feel like your jacket is not as water repellent as it was previously, try the Storm Proof which is specifically designed for all down items to restore water repellence. It can be used on down sleeping bags as well.
