

YOU'RE PART OF A STORIED TRADITION.

Where We've Been and Where We're Going—Together

As a new member, you're an important partner in our international science and exploration endeavors.

Thanks to visionary individuals like you, we're proud to have supported more than 11,000 such projects since our start in 1888.

A century ago, stories in National Geographic magazine were instrumental in creating our national park system. The Society sponsored Hiram Bingham as he unearthed Machu Picchu and assisted Richard Byrd as he flew over the South Pole.

We helped realize Robert Ballard's quest to find the Titanic, Jane Goodall's study of chimpanzees, and Paul Sereno's search for dinosaur fossils. The Geographic flag accompanied the first Americans to scale Mount Everest and to walk on the moon.

And all of these accomplishments were possible because of support from members like you. But we're not looking back—we're looking forward. There's so much more to explore. Your journey with National Geographic starts now. What will you help us discover? We can't wait to find out!
