Torrey Lisa found her zest for life in her later years and hasn't looked back...

When her three kids left home, Torrey Lisa found herself unhappy and unsatisfied in her marriage – and she knew she had to do what was best for her and ended the 26-year relationship.

But keen to get her mojo back, and armed with a new zest for life, Torrey quickly threw herself into dating – and began experimenting with polyamory, seeing multiple partners at the same time.

UNHAPPY

As time went on, Torrey delved deeper into her sexual liberation and is now a successful adult entertainer who travels the world creating content – and she earns a small fortune while doing it.

Torrey says, 'I'm like any other retiree who decides to globe trot – except I mix my travel with pleasure and make it profitable. I'm the happiest I could ever have imagined myself being.'

Torrey, 54, who lives in Nevada, USA, married Billy in 1993 and had three children, Dakota, Talon and Drake. However, 10 years into their marriage, Torrey realised she was unhappy and filed for divorce – but just a year later they reunited. She says, 'It felt like the right thing to do. It meant the boys had their dad back in their lives.'

But eventually, the cracks started to reappear once more, and Torrey filed for divorce when she was 49. She says, 'My youngest son, Drake, was 18, so I knew the boys would understand. I felt sad at first, but eventually I started going on dates. I was desperate for some fun and I didn't want to be tied to one man again. I was having the time of life.'

'It wasn't long before I started enjoying threesomes and BDSM. After having a conventional "vanilla" sex life for so long, it felt great to have control and be dominant in the bedroom. I'd never felt sexier and was more confident and happier!'

THRILL

Discovering an affinity for bondage, Torrey began posting amateur photos and videos of herself on a specialist site. She says, 'I felt this sudden sense of self-confidence. I even went as far as uploading saucy videos of myself having threesomes. It was such a thrill!'

She posted the less risqué photos on Twitter, which eventually went viral and garnered a lot of positive attention. She says, 'I got comments such as, "You're rocking the wrinkles", and, "Love the stretchmarks". I felt like my heart could burst with love and it really boosted my confidence. I didn't lie about my age or airbrush my photos. They loved me for me. I quickly realised my age and grey hair were my biggest selling points.'

Invigorated by a new lease of life, Torrey took herself on a solo trip across Europe to Torrey signed up to OnlyFans, as well as other adult sites, and dedicated her time to modelling and promoting herself to a wider audience. She says, 'Shortly afterwards, I was at a friend's party when a man approached me. He was a photographer and a big name in the industry. I couldn't believe my luck as I'd wanted to do a shoot for so long. Two weeks later, I did my first shoot – posing in lingerie before going completely nude. He kept telling me I was a natural, and as I looked at the photos I felt so empowered.'

EXPERIENCES

Other photographers reached out to Torrey and she soon grew in popularity. But as she became more successful, some of her family members snubbed her.

'I was happy to cut them off though as I didn't need the negativity,' she explains.

'This job gave me a thick skin and any negative comments rolled off my back.'

When Covid restrictions

lifted, Torrey joined a burlesque academy, which she says opened even more doors for her. She juggled modelling, filming and work and decided to operate independently so as not to burn herself out. But when the opportunity of a lifetime arose, she couldn't say no.

She explains, 'My friend Alice set up the Adult Roadshow – a group of adult performers who travel to different destinations and film for a week at a time. It meant I would be travelling across America and had trips planned to Mexico and Japan – I was seeing more of the world than I'd ever imagined. I sometimes have to pinch myself that I'm getting such amazing experiences – and I'm being paid for it!'

INFLUENCE

When Torrey isn't on the road, she's a devoted nan and loves nothing more than seeing her granddaughter. She says, 'We do all the things you do with your grandkids. I'll take her out for ice cream, or we'll go shopping or sightseeing. The other month I took her and her mum to Disneyland and the Pacific Coast for the first time. I also surprised her at her school orchestra, which she loved.'

Having just recently had another grandchild, she can't wait for her family to continue to grow. She says, 'When they're older, they'll find out what I do. But right now, I'm the happiest I've ever been.'

'I dedicated my life to others and now it's time to live for myself. I want to influence other older women who might be stuck in their lives and don't feel truly fulfilled. Maybe they'll read my story and be inspired. All I'll say is – you never know until you try it! Life is too short to not live for yourself.'
