

MyScotiabank Français

viporter
insider

Sponsored by Scotiabank

SPONSORED

Go Farther With Your Passport

Discover the benefits of the new Scotiabank Passport™ Visa Infinite* Card

If you love to travel, you expect that your credit card will travel with you. You want it to get you there faster—and take you further.

That's why Scotiabank is launching the NEW Scotiabank Passport Visa Infinite card, a credit card that provides enhanced value to customers. Not only does it make travel easier by letting you earn points on everyday purchases, it also helps you upgrade your travel experience with a host of benefits. "This card is your gateway to what we believe is easier, less restrictive, more enjoyable travel," says Chris MacDonald, Vice President, Product, Loyalty and Partnerships, Scotiabank.

For whatever your travel needs, you'll find that the Scotiabank Passport Visa Infinite card is packed with benefits to help make your travel experience more enjoyable. Enroll in the complimentary airport-lounge access membership available with this card and enjoy six free visits per year for yourself or for anyone you are travelling with. Once at your destination, shop in local boutiques, pay for attraction tickets and dine out with no foreign currency conversion markup on all your foreign transactions. You'll only pay the exchange rate.

Using the Scotiabank Passport Visa Infinite card earns you two Scotia Rewards® points for every dollar you spend at eligible grocery stores, on dining, entertainment purchases and even daily transit (this includes buses, subways, taxis and more.) You'll also earn one point for every dollar you spend on all other everyday purchases.

New customers can receive 25,000 Scotia Rewards points when they are approved for a new Scotiabank Passport Visa Infinite card. That's $250 you can redeem toward the travel of your choice.

Also, if you have the Scotiabank Passport debit card, you can earn Scotia Rewards points even faster by earning points on both your debit and credit card transactions. "If you have both our Scotiabank Passport debit card and Scotiabank Passport Visa Infinite credit card, you're going to earn travel rewards every time you pay," says MacDonald.

There are so many possibilities with Scotia Rewards points. You can redeem for flights, hotels, car rentals, cruises, vacation packages, train tickets and more. "And it gives you more flexibility, if you find a better deal with a hotel (or want to book an Airbnb), you can book your own and use your points to pay for it after the fact," explains MacDonald. Or, book travel with the Scotia Rewards Travel Service, a full-service travel agency that gives you a best-price guarantee on airfare for 24 hours after booking. You only need 5,000 points to start redeeming.

And with no travel restrictions, the Scotiabank Passport Visa Infinite card will go wherever you do—without any hassle. (Think any airline, any dates.) Put your mind at ease with the card's travel emergency medical, trip cancellation and trip interruption insurance coverage which help ensure your plans are protected. You can even redeem points toward travel that you've already booked—with any airline, cruise line, car rental company or other provider—for up to a year after purchase.

Or maybe you need an escape closer to home. That's easy: you can convert your travel rewards points to SCENE® points and take the family to the movies this weekend. "We heard from customers that they wanted flexibility and to be able to move points back and forth," says MacDonald. "So however you want to be rewarded, there's something for you."

Whether you're going as far as the other side of the world or headed just down the street, the Scotiabank Passport Visa Infinite card will help you get there—and get more out of the experience.

The Scotiabank Passport Visa Infinite card will be available in Canada beginning March 2018. Visit scotiabank.com/passportinfinite for more details. Conditions apply.

Photos by Shutterstock
TM Trademark of The Bank of Nova Scotia
® Registered trademark of The Bank of Nova Scotia
Visa® is a trademark used
® Registered trademark of SCENE® IP Ltd. used under license

About Archive

Official & Sole Authorized by Scotiabank

By using refined Terms of use Privacy Travel Terms and Conditions

Viporter Insider — Sponsored by Scotiabank

© 2018 Copyright Royal Bank of Canada