Eyebrows, while functional, adds dimensions to your face and gives a symmetrical balance. I speak from experience when I say one style does not suit every one. I tried to follow the skinny eyebrow fad and came to the horrific realization that I almost resembled Voldemort. It was traumatic.

Each face shape has its own attributes and should be complimented not downplayed so before you get all tweezer happy, figure out what your face shape. It will help if you pull your hair back and take a picture face front (imagine taking a passport photo). This will help show your forehead, cheekbone structure and jawline shape.

Oval Face

Diana Danielle, well known for her mixed heritage is one of Malaysian's beauties. She has starred in a few drama's that has helped her make her mark in the film industry. Currently, she is pursuing her studies in Fine arts in Sydney.

Diana's face is oval and oval faces are generally wider at the forehead than at the chin. The cheekbones are high and sharp that narrows slightly to the chin.

To be honest, those with oval faces are blessed by the fact that almost any eyebrow shape suits them. However, to give it that sharp, on fleek look, consider shaping your eyebrows into a flatter arch. Start thick between the eyes and follow suit with the tail. Just like the image above, the eyebrow does not have such a dramatic arch and gives off a very natural look to it.

Round Face

Malaysian's Sweetheart Siti Nurhaliza needs no introduction. She is widely recognize at the most awarded Malaysian celebrity with multiple awards, world recognition and highest selling album sales in Malaysia. Our lovely Siti has proved to be business savvy as well when she launched her SimplySiti cosmetic line.

Her youthful face is rounded and round face shapes are easier to spot as their faces are typically wide as it is long. The cheeks would be the widest area on the face.

Round faces do not have distinct dimensions to their features so adding sharp, high arches will help add more features to your face. This arch will give a rounder face a sharper edge. Remember to always shave upwards as to give it that more natural look and at the same time, elongate your face.

Long Face

Maya Karin has showed us her chameleon style acting when she spooked us in her famous horror film Potianak Harum Sundal Malam and made us sob in Ombak Rindu. This actress has shown us again and again why she is one of the best in the film industry.

Maya's beautiful face is long and long faces have a symmetrical width at the forehead, cheekbones and jawlines. The chin is rather oval with subtle cheekbones. Those with long faces should stay clear of high arches as it will make you face seem even more elongated. Stick to flatter shapes and elongate the tail. This will help balance out the shape.

Square Face

Presenting Yuna, the multi-talented musician that has been all over the globe, making music with musical legends such as Pharrell Williams, Usher, DJ Premier and Owl City to name a few. Malaysians are beyond proud and are always on the lookout for more music produced by her. Her face is square and square faces are easy to spot as the jawline is usually angular and sharp, cutting inward. The forehead to the jawlines are generally the same width.

If you have a square face, thinning your eyebrows may not be a good idea. You would want to keep it thick and filled to balance out the prominent jawline. Keep the arch rounded and not sharp to take less emphasis on the jawline. However, for this face shape, take into consideration the length of your eyes. The tail of your eyebrow should go beyond the corner of your eyes.

Heart Shape

Tan Sri Dato' Seri Michelle Yeoh is the pride and joy of Malaysians everywhere. Ever since her breakthrough in a Hong Kong film, this lovely lady has managed to snag top roles from Bond films to her latest cameo in Guardians of the Galaxy 2.

She has been blessed with a heart shaped face and these faces are rather similar to the oval shaped face but is sharper at the chin. This shape usually has larger foreheads and big eyes, so that means the emphasis is already on those areas. Stay clear of thick, high arched brows as this will the top half of your face larger. What you want to do is to emphasis your smile and jawline by keeping your brows straight and rounded at the arch.

Diamond Shape

A household name in Malaysia, this beauty stole hearts in her recent drama, Suri Hati Mr.Pilot. Neelofa has garnered attention in 2010 from winning a beauty contest and has rocketed to stardom ever since. Her face is considered a diamond shape.

A diamond shaped face is quite rare to find. Just like its name, the face shape is angular and widest at the temple. Keep the eyebrows sparse and not too sharp at the arch. Rounded arches are the way to go as they will give the face more symmetry and lessen the sharpness of the cheekbones.

Right! So you have figured your face shape, what kind of eyebrow to style for yourself; now you need to know how to shape and maintain it.

Any brow professional will tell you that over plucking is basically eyebrow suicide. First step is to always seek professional help. Especially if you have never done your eyebrows before! The last thing you want is a bald spot. But if you are a DIY kind of person, then always remember to shave upwards and outwards and avoid over plucking.

Once you have gotten the shape, maintaining it is super easy. Depending on how fast your hair grows, keep an eye on the them and pluck away those unwanted strays. A rule of thumb is to draw an outline around the shape of your brows and pluck those out of the line. This will help you know when to stop. If you want thinner brows, remember to pluck inwards going outwards, keeping in mind that it should always be thicker at the base than at the tail.

Avoid plucking multiple hairs at once! Though tempting and less time consuming, you might end up with a bald spot. At the same time, don't get too close to the mirror, keep away and pluck as this will avoid over plucking and let you know when to stop.

After plucking, calm your skin by rubbing aloe vera gel or cold cream to soothe the freshly plucked skin.
