

Subject: Discover if our MSN: ACNP program is right for you!

Hi Brian Jonath,

Grand Canyon University's advanced practice degree program offers BSN-prepared nurses the opportunity to earn a Master of Science in Nursing: Acute Care Nurse Practitioner with an Emphasis in Adult-Gerontology.*

Key Program Highlights:

- Can be completed one course at a time for a total of 53 credits
- Is online¹ (clinical, practicum and immersion hours completed locally)
- Offers hands-on guidance through two- and three-day on-campus experience programs

What Can You Learn?

This program works to prepare experienced registered nurses to provide competent advanced practice nursing care in complex, acute and critical care settings through an evidence-based program of study. Graduates will be eligible for certification as adult-gerontology acute care nurse practitioners.

Course Topics:

- Advanced health assessment
- Clinical diagnosis
- Procedural skill acquisition
- Care management of adult and geriatric acute care patients, subacute patients, complex patients and patients with exacerbations of chronic illness

Application Requirements:

Students need one year of relevant RN work experience — recent work experience must be in acute care. This program is only offered in approved states.
