

Bob's BAND!

1 It's the day of the Spring City Music Concert and Bob has been asked to play his saxophone with the band. "We need to fix the bandstand before the band can play today," Bob explains.

2 Lofty lifts planks to the top of the bandstand and Bob nails them down with a hammer. Then, Bob paints the bandstand with shiny white paint. “Good work, team!” says Bob.

3 Bob sends the team back to the yard to help Leo tidy the garage, but Roley wants to stay and listen to Bob practise the saxophone so he quietly rolls away behind some bushes to hide.

4 At the garage, the machines find Leo making his own music, drumming on oil drums with a spanner. The machines join in by shaking building materials. Just then, Leo gets a phonecall from Bob, but the machines are making too much noise for him to hear.

5 Bob hears all the noise on the phone and thinks something bad has happened. "Oh no! I need to get back to the garage," he says. Roley sees Bob leaving and follows him, but he accidentally rolls over the band's instruments! "Oh dear! Everyone will be cross with me," he sniffs.

6 Bob gets back to the garage and realises that everyone was just having fun making music. Bob's phone rings again and it's Mr Bentley who has found his flattened instrument. Roley returns and apologises. "Don't worry, Roley, we can make new instruments. Let's get to work, team!"

7

The team get to work, welding metal pipes into a new saxophone for Bob, and turning wooden planks into a xylophone for Chef Tattie. They make an oil drum drum kit, some tin can chimes and a watering can trumpet!

8

They finish just in time for the concert and everyone agrees that the new instruments are the best ones they've ever seen. They gather around the new bandstand to listen to Bob's band. "This is groovy, go Bob's band!" cheers Roley.

THE END!
