Knight Shades

Dying behind the shades to avoid feeling shame.
He who isn't blind is the one who's meant to find me.
Hiding in the shadows to escape from my pain.
Please guide me to the light where my fears aren't confining.
Lost in the darkness, I'm forgetting my own name.

Your silence is deafening, yet you're all I hear.
The thing I fear most is already here.
I'm staring right at you with so much to say,
But the words won't come out,
They've come and gone away.
Because I'm dead to you it seems.
But why?
Why do I still see you in my dreams?
Hiding it all behind these shades
No one will know the pain I carry or the one I blame.
Because I protect you even though you're unworthy,
You hide in sheepskin; you are my fury.

Sleepless knight brings me Sleepless nights.
Slowly I fade, behind these dark shades.
In this endless struggle, my soul craves to take flight.
But I'm trapped in this abyss with no end in sight.
And through this haze, my hope begins to fade,
From endless nights tortured by my endless knight.
