

Dakota Ridge varsity volleyball takes Columbine 3-2 in a challenging game from both sides. The Eagles played with a strong front as they battled against the Rebels for a long and trivial night.

“I have never been more proud of our volleyball girls this season, because of how they fought through many adverse moments” Head varsity volleyball coach, Matthew Zeman said.

The game was adverse for both sides through the tough head to head volleys, the score being close the entire night, and the close calls that the refs and line judges had to make. The Dakota student section voiced their discontent with some of the refs calls throughout the night.

“The line judges are so biased... and the refs have bad calls,” Junior varsity volleyball player, Lan Nguyen said.

By the end of the third match Dakota Ridge was down 2-1, and had two more sets to go. Student sections continued to grow for both teams, as they knew this rival game could last all the way to 5 sets.

Dakota Ridge was able to make an outstanding comeback after being down at the start of the game, and winning after the fifth set, ending the game and bringing home another win for Dakota successfully ending another Think Pink game.

The passion was able to come through in the student section as many showed up in their pink pride to support cancer awareness, and to cheer on the volleyball team.

“It was a really vibrant crowd, and I'm proud of how our crowd supported our team”
Zeman responds to the vibrant community created in response to the game and the Think Pink atmosphere.
