Euclid senior athletes recognized on National Signing Day

Nine Euclid High School seniors signed letters of intent as the high school observed National Signing Day in February.

National Signing Day honors students who sign letters of intent to play sports at the college level. Mark "Munch" Bishop, a sports commentator on FOX Sports 1350, served as the keynote speaker for Euclid's ceremony.

Students who signed include:

- Kristan Ross, Murray State University
- John Brown, West Liberty University
- Le'Juan Bryant, Vermillion Community College
- Mark'quise Duck-

- worth, Vermillion Community College
- Steve Hall, University of Charleston
- Jaabir Mujihad, Ohio Dominican University
- Aric Hodnett, West Virginia Wesleyan College
- Jay'Quawon Phillips, West Liberty University
- Mamadou M'Baye, West Virginia Wesleyan College

"Congratulations to our star student-athletes," Euclid City Schools Superintendent Christopher Pappouras said.

"I wish them all the very best as they take their next steps in their education and life's journey."

Euclid HS receives CPR training kit donation

Cleveland Browns cornerback's foundation honors his father

Cleveland Browns cornerback Denzel Ward and his mother, Nicole Ward, paid a visit to Euclid High School this month.

The Make Them Know Your Name Foundation, started by the Wards after Denzel's father Paul Ward, Jr. died of cardiac arrest, donated a CPR in Schools training kit to the high school. Nicole Ward talked about how her husband suffered cardiac arrest at a gym where no one used the automated external defibrillator (AED) machine, because they were not familiar with how to use it.

"Time is of the essence when you are faced with cardiac arrest," she said. "Every moment - no, every second - counts."

"We just appreciate you guys for taking the initiative," Denzel Ward said about students learning CPR.

The state passed a bill in 2016 requiring public high schools and charter schools to give students CPR and AED-hands-on instruction. The training kit includes 10 CPR Annie training mannequins and 10 AED training kits.

Euclid Schools would like to thank the Make Them Know Your Name Foundation for your donation and to the American Heart Association for your assistance and participation in the assembly held at the high school.

Celebrating Black History Month at Euclid Schools

The Early Learning Village and Bluestone Elementary invited the community in February to help celebrate Black History Month.

Parents and community members volunteered to read to our students during the schools' African-American Read-Ins. The guest readers read books written by African-American authors. Other schools also held celebrations throughout the month.

Chardon Hills students 'dress for success'

Chardon Hills Magnet School students are learning what it means to "dress for success."

The Chardon Hills Family School Partnership Committee implemented a weekly Dress for Success Day to kick off the new year. Every Thursday, students have the opportunity to dress in their best attire. Students who participate receive a raffle ticket each week. Multiple tickets are drawn at the end of each quarter and participating students have an opportunity to win various prizes.

Research shows that people present the best version of themselves when they are "dressed for success." If students feel good on the outside, they are more likely to feel good on the inside. This initiative presents a climate that boosts students' attitudes and confidence, leading them to try their best.

The Family-School Partnership Committee allows administrators, teachers and family members to collaborate on school initiatives.

This story is part of The Weekly Callout, a weekly e-newsletter launched by Euclid City Schools Superintendent Christopher Papouras to celebrate the school district's successes and keep the public informed. It is sent out to parents and guardians and shared on the district website, www.euclidschools.org. It is also shared on the district's Facebook and Twitter accounts.
