

American Locker Launches New Website

American Locker proudly announces the launch of its new fully modern and technologically advanced website. American Locker has evolved over the past 18 months and many of the changes drove a complete remodel of the site. In partnership with Canyon Creative out of Las Vegas, Americanlocker.com was developed to capture the current portfolio of products as well as ensure maximum ease of use for the consumer. Chris Colwell, SVP of Sales, commented "It was essential for American Locker to have a new site that had the proper modern architecture and content detail for all our site visitors. With the change in ownership, move to Las Vegas, a refresh of product content, and need to set up for a fully automated shopping cart experience, tearing down the old to replace with new was essential. We are confident that as more and more SKUs become available in the American Locker portfolio, our guest experience will only become richer.

Dale Sprague, President of Canyon Creative, added "We are proud to partner with American Locker and play such an integral role in developing a new, user-friendly website. Their commitment to exceed customer expectations is unsurpassed and mirrors the philosophy of Canyon Creative. There are more changes in store and we're excited to be a part of making them happen."

American Locker will continue to evolve and its web presence is no different. The site maximizes today's architecture development needs and will be host to the previously mentioned shopping cart, which will be online in Q3 2016.
