

Go ahead, touch it. You're holding more than 50 years of experience in your hands.

See those wrinkles, scratches and briar marks? You're supposed to. They're not flaws, but unique characteristics of Eastland Craftsman leather used in these shoes. And distinctive signs of our heritage of quality and craftsmanship.

This new full-grain leather is made to retain its natural characteristics. Consider these minor variations expressions of individuality brought about by a timehonored tanning process.

We say, embrace the nuances. You can minimize color variations, however, by simply brushing or rubbing the shoes with a soft cloth.

We are proud of our shoes and hope you enjoy wearing them.

For more on Eastland Craftsman leather go to www.eastlandshoe.com

Time-honored Quality