Movies That Bombed at the Box Office But I Watched Them Day One The world may not have liked these movies, but I was a fan.

By Rebecca Carlyle | Last modified: January 12, 2024

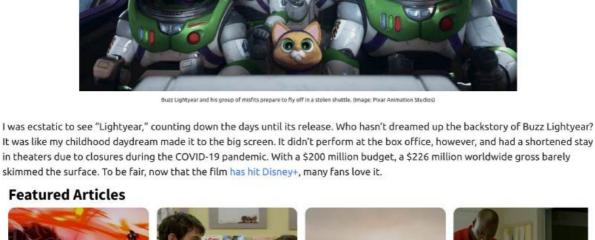

A movie is considered a flop when it doesn't make back the budget invested to make it. The films on this list are considered failures, but I loved every one of them and cleared my schedule to ensure I could see them in their first week. 'Lightyear' (2022) office hit.

15 Underrated Foreign Films You Shouldn't

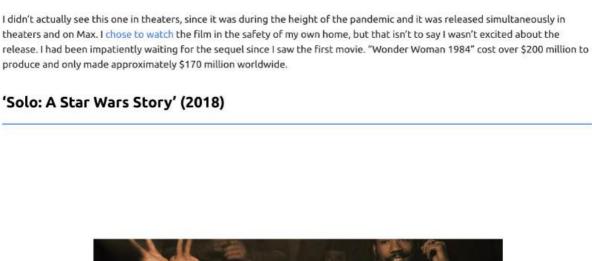

I didn't enjoy the first film, "Suicide Squad." I had high hopes for it, since Margot Robbie is one of my favorite actresses, but I wasn't a fan of Cara Delevingne or her character's arc. Since the second installment focused more on Harley Quinn (Robbie), however, I was all about it — and it didn't disappoint! The budget was a whopping $185 million and it pulled in only $168 million worldwide, at least partly because Warner Bros. decided it should be available to stream on Max while it was still in theaters.

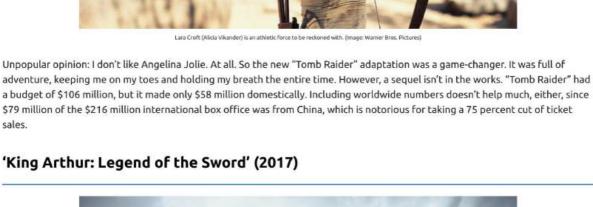

'Wonder Woman 1984' (2020)

'Tomb Raider' (2018)

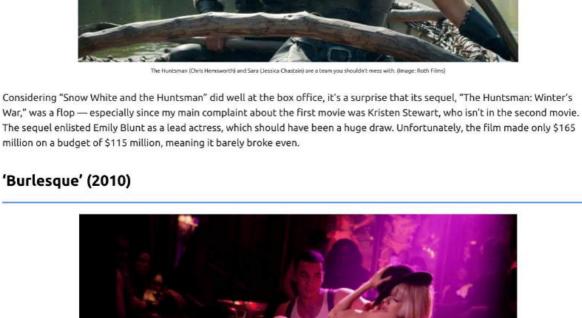

mine, so seeing his backstory was a highlight for me. Alden Ehrenreich did an incredible job recreating the beloved character portrayed by Harrison Ford. Yet for some reason the movie grossed only $393 million on a budget of at least $275 million.

From the old Disney movie of my childhood to the poorly funded BBC show, the lore surrounding King Arthur has always called to me. It had been a while since anyone had attempted to revamp the legend, so to say I was excited about "King Arthur: Legend of the Sword" would be an understatement. Of course, I insisted on seeing it in theaters. I was a fan of the movie, but it was a flop

'The Huntsman: Winter's War' (2016)

with only $146 million worldwide on a $175 million budget.

All (Christina Aguillera) proves to have powerful lungs and the chops to make it as a star. (Image: Screen Gems)

Technically, "Burlesque" wasn't a flop. It had a mixed reception, and it made $90 million worldwide on a $55 million budget, so it did OK. Even after 13 years, the internet doesn't know how to rate the movie. I saw it in theaters twice and made a Halloween costume from scratch that matched one of Christina Aguilera's. As a dance major and Aguilera fan, I may be biased.

'Cutthroat Island' (1995)

I didn't attend the box office debut of "Cutthroat Island" since I was only 3 years old, but I think it's worth mentioning. The movie was an epic failure. It cost approximately $115 million to produce and made only $10 million. The production company even went out of business. But it's one of my all-time favorite movies. I grew up watching it on VHS with my mom, along with classics such as

"Lethal Weapon" and "Die Hard." Geena Davis is a rockstar in this movie, and she did all her stunts herself.

Your email address will not be published. Required fields are marked *

Name Email $\ \square$ Save my name, email, and website in this browser for the next time I comment. Post Comment osted in What to Watch

Privacy Policy Terms of Use Accessibility

CordJutting

Leave a Reply

Comment *

Do Not Sell/Share My Personal Information Limit the Use of My Sensitive Personal Information

Careers Editorial Guidelines Research What to Watch

Information

About Us

Contact

Hulu Philo Roku Streaming Devices Sling TV

ESPN+

Popular Pages

How-tos and DIY Compare Brands

Popular Guides

Find a Channel