Luminot is a minimalistic handmade table-lamp. It blends the natural beauty of solid wood with the modern allure of acrylic, resulting in a luxurious presentation. It features a neat joint that provides variance to the simple shapes the lamp might take.

The design idea emerged while working at the fabrication lab. It started with sketches of a lines to be developed as a table lamp of straight beams. After hand sketching, the concept was converted to a 3D model and a realistic render. After that a low fidelity prototype using cardboard, foam and scotch-tape was created, and finally the piece was fabricated using pinewood, and acrylic pieces to enclose the wiring.
