I am a journalist currently working in the B2B transport sector but with an appetite for the audio and podcast industry. I have years of experience in various newsrooms and production spaces: from writing business transport and technology news for online publications and writing local news for digital and print outlets on the Isle of Man to volunteering and working for radio and podcast projects.

Work and Relevant Experience

Transport Reporter - GlobalData: April 2023 - Current

I am the primary reporter for GlobalData's three B2B transport news sites, covering daily business news in the aviation, rail, and maritime sectors. In addition to writing four news articles a day across the sites, I also write long-form features and interview senior figures in the three industries. As part of my role I have also attended multiple conferences and press trips in the UK and internationally.

Journalist - Spacehouse: November 2022 - April 2023

I worked as the lead journalist on Infotec.news, a website covering technology news with a focus on a public sector audience. This also involved sourcing, crafting, interviewing for and writing original stories, as well as working alongside writers for the company's other sites.

Production Intern - Audio Always: Jan 2022 - December 2022

I worked freelance as a production intern for the Isle of Man TT Podcast, writing copy for promotional articles and podcast descriptions, suggesting podcast titles, selecting clips for social media, and researching guests. I also acted as a production assistant during a series of recording sessions on the Isle of Man.

Journalist - Isle of Man Newspapers: August 2022 - October 2022

I worked for Isle of Man Newspapers as a member of the journalism team. I sought out and conducted interviews, attended events, and wrote up local news for the company's three newspapers and online outlet.

Writer - Gef The Mongoose/Gef.im: June 2020, Internship in Sept 2020 and June - Sept 2021

I worked as a content contributor before completing two internships as part of the journalism team. I had input on editorial issues such as content for the website and the photos/artwork used. Following this, I was asked back as a freelancer to help with coverage of the island's elections.

Education

Leeds Trinity University - 2019 - 2022

BA Journalism (First Class Honours)

NCTJ Diploma

Skills & Abilities

- Newswriting - In my current position and throughout my experience I have written thousands of articles in a variety of formats, including B2B daily news and features for online outlets, shortform news for newspapers, and local and international news for a youth audience online.
- Audio and Video - I have a lot of experience with recording video and audio of myself and other people/settings both in entertainment and news contexts. This knowledge comes partly from my university course where I have been trained in radio and TV techniques and created or helped to create programmes for podcasts, live radio, and short TV news bulletins.
- Communication and Teamwork - Throughout my career communication has been one of my strong points as I speak to sources and interviewees to get the best information out of them or to arrange further conversations. In my current position I also work with my editor and the wider transport team on the daily and seasonal output of our sites.
- Organisation - As a journalist I have to be very organised to ensure I am keeping track of my usual daily tasks and any extra responsibilities I may have in a day, including interviews I have arranged, press visits and editorial meetings.
- Interviewing - I have a high standard for conducting interviews in writing, audio and tv formats. This is something I regularly do now with high-profile figures in the transport industry, including C-Suite leaders and CEOs.
- Social Media and SEO- Alongside ensuring a high level of SEO for every article I publish, I am also responsible for posting content on the LinkedIn pages of the three websites I write on. Content I have written in my current job has regularly reached page views in the thousands.
- Software knowledge - Working knowledge of using a WordPress CMS and Microsoft Office and G-Suite products. An understanding of Adobe Audition and Premiere Pro.

Hobbies and Interests

Alongside keeping up with current events, entertainment and politics news outside of work, I have a strong interest in musical theatre and take part in musicals at an amateur level, as I have done since I was young. I also make an effort to engage with the latest film releases from a variety of genres and documentaries and enjoy discussing my opinions on them with people on line and in person, especially around the awards season.
