Smooth Move: Dermaplanning + CBD

If you're up on your skin-care trends, you'll already know that dermaplane is the exfoliating skin treatment of the now. (Microdermabrasion is so oughts.) The downtime-free facial procedure does use a surgical scalpel, but don't let that unnerve you: it's just to shave your face. No, really: an aesthetician skillfully and gently scrapes the blade along the surface of your face while holding your skin taut, removing the top-most layer (read: dead cells) and the fine vellus hair known affectionately as peach fuzz. It's a super painless procedure that yields bright, smooth, glowing results, and it primes your skin for better absorption of skin-care products.

Like CBD. You know, the "it" ingredient causing a stir in health and beauty circles this year. At the Smooth Room, a wax and skin-care studio near DU, you can combine a dermaplane facial experience with a CBD package using a proprietary blend CBD facial oil infused with anti-inflammatory herbs and terpenes. During the Calming the Nerves session ($95), you'll also enjoy guided meditation, CBD massage, and CBD water, coffee, or tea—plus some take-home products to keep you glowing to the point even strangers may comment. (Editor's note: it happened 7 times in the week following my visit.) Bask in the compliments and spread the word.
