Interest Checklist Assessment Summary

OT-529-A: FW IA

2/21/25

On Friday, February 21st, I completed the Interest Checklist with a client at Dana's House, a New Haven, Connecticut, reentry program. I believe this assessment would explore the interests the client could reflect on while also instilling hope that they will participate in these activities after leaving the reentry program. When asked if they understood the directions, the client showed interest. Throughout the assessment, the client expressed joy in the activities listed. For the column listed, "In the past ten years," the client was often delighted to tell me that they participated in the activity while they were in school at a younger age. It appears they had a clear memory of their childhood regarding school activities and spending time with family and friends. Because of the position they are in in the house, it was hard to identify activities they could currently participate in. However, the client was receptive and listed many activities they would like to participate in in the future. Overall, the client was able to identify activities they were interested in, past and future, and think about how these activities could or have impacted them thus far in their journey to live independently.
