Learn how SplitPay works

For eligible accounts, AT&T SplitPay is designed to simplify payment for your shared wireless expenses by splitting the bill among everyone on your plan. As the primary wireless account owner with only one line, you'll first need to add additional lines. Then, if you choose to enable SplitPay, here's how it works:

- You can set up split billing for anyone you wish to collect payment from on your account. Visit att.com/splitpay to get started. You can group lines together, including lines for tablets and smartwatches.
- The line-level user will be notified when a payment is due via text from AT&T and directed to the payment flow.
- You will be notified when a payment has been made.
- You can check payment status at any time by navigating to the Manage SplitPay screen on the myAT&T app and selecting Check payment status.

Good to know: SplitPay is available for select postpaid wireless plans only. It is not available for customers enrolled in AutoPay with a credit card.

What if the line-level users on my account don't pay their bills on time?

There is no grace period for paying your monthly AT&T bill. As the account owner, if you enable SplitPay, your bill is still due on the due date, regardless of who is paying.

Ultimately, the account owner is responsible for making sure the entire bill is paid. If the bill is not paid, all lines may be suspended, and you may incur a late fee.
