

Email Sign-Offs That Leave an Impression.

Because “Best” Just Doesn’t.

(if you're gonna send 37 emails today, why not have some fun with it?)

The background of the entire image is a repeating pattern of light beige keyboard keys, viewed from a slightly elevated angle, creating a sense of depth and texture.

warmly,

Classic, but still solid. Polished with a touch of heart.

The background of the entire image is a repeating pattern of light beige keyboard keys, viewed from a slightly elevated angle, creating a textured, isometric effect.

Take care,

Gentle.
Thoughtful.
Especially nice for heavier or personal convos.

The background of the entire image is a repeating pattern of light beige keyboard keys, viewed from a slightly elevated angle, creating a textured, geometric effect.

All the best vibes,

Supportive without being stiff.
Won't endear you to your Gen Z colleagues like you hope it will,
but it tries.

With caffeinated enthusiasm,

When you're jazzed about what's ahead.

And possibly running on one too many cups.

The background of the entire image is a repeating pattern of light beige keyboard keys, viewed from a slightly elevated angle, creating a textured, isometric effect.

Keep being magic,

Supportive.
Fun.
Slight fairy godparent energy.

The background of the image features a repeating pattern of light beige keyboard keys, viewed from a slightly elevated angle, creating a textured, geometric backdrop.

May your wi-fi stay strong,

A blessing? A hope? A curse? You're playing it mysterious.

The background of the entire image is a repeating pattern of light beige keyboard keys, viewed from a slightly elevated angle, creating a textured, isometric effect.

In full inbox solidarity,

When you know they're drowning in emails, too.

As ever (but with snacks),

For when the horrors keep horror-ing,
but you've got a fresh box of Frito-Lay Classic Mix.

That's all, folks!

Sprinkle these into your sign-offs as you like;
my small, subtle gift to brighten your inbox :D

