

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Bode Fall 2023 Collection

GENEVA, New York – The Bode Fall 2023 campaign collection promotes a sense of familiarity and festivity, with solid roots in family history. Emily Adams Bode Aujla pays homage to her mother and three aunts, the Rice sisters.

- This collection has eveningwear for everyone, as Bode offers its first collection that includes womenswear
- Bode took to reinventing heirlooms such as her grandmother's embroidered sweater, and delicate vintage 20s dresses
- Excitement for the holiday season is expressed through multiple party looks, including an impressively tasteful Christmas tree mini dress

The warmth sought in the cold months is provided in multiple forms: hue and material. Bode offers thick cardigans and pullovers, woolly blazers, which come in sorts of reds and browns. This Bode collection offers a nostalgic level of comfort often lost to the end of one's childhood.

This collection keeps classic silhouettes in mind while incorporating styling choices of the current day. We see flapper dresses with loose silhouettes and conservative hemlines contrasting with the sheer fabric that leaves the body on display. Bode respects classic hemlines, proving that comfort does not have to mean oversized. Trousers, suits, jackets, and coats all prove an appreciation for fine tailoring.

The presence of family in the collection is expressed through various vintage styles, as well as the motifs of the holiday season bring us back to family gatherings in our childhood homes. Fair isle knits, holiday jewel tones, and the celebratory shine of sequins and metallics make this collection a must in every closet from November through January.

View the collection here:

<https://wwd.com/fashion-news/shows-reviews/gallery/bode-mens-fall-1235489863/bode-mens-fall-2023-51/>

Leah Henning, student leahhenning6@gmail.com