

Preamble

We are a party that seeks to repair the broken systems in our government.

The one thing that we all share in common, our humanity, has been pushed so far aside in our modern politics. We have traded our morals for wealth, our compassion for misplaced pragmatism, our children for convenience. Our virtues are only seen by our in-groups, and our faults are seen only by our enemies. We are forced to bicker over pedantry while the world around us melts into levels of chaos never before seen in our age.

As such, we stand against:

- Lies that frame the 'other' as evil.
- Lies that say we know better than all others.
- Lies that devalue any human, for any reason.
- Lies that those outside our border seek only to harm us.
- Lies that a healthy, educated, society is too costly to be achieved in our time.

As such, we strongly support:

- Women, when they are working, when they are mothers, when they are in need of medical aid, and all other times.
- Refugees, when they are displaced for reasons of war, when they are displaced for reasons of climate change, when they are displaced for reasons of drugs, and all other times.
- Families, when they are biological, when they are adoptive, when they have two same-sex parents, when they have one parent or no parent, and all other times.
- Those who have no voice, when they are poor, when they speak another language, when they are incarcerated, and all other times.
- The stewardship of resources, when they are natural, when they are economic, when they are human, and all other times.
- Civil and honest discussion, when we have things to say, when we have things to learn, and all other times.

We acknowledge that all truth cannot be held by any human, group of humans, or organization. Because of that, we seek to change as we learn more about what works, and what doesn't. We reject holding onto bad policy simply because it is ours. We recognize and reject the influence of baseless fear in our society, knowing that fear never takes us to a place of strength. In order to keep our exceptional country exceptional, we have to roll this great experiment forward, not backward. We must constantly look for ways to improve ourselves and our world, and apply what we learn to push our nation into greater justice, greater prosperity, and greater peace.

We believe these are responsibilities that fall to us by virtue of simply existing upon this earth. To do less is to allow our fellow human beings to fall prey to the broken systems.
