

LAGUNA VERDE

– a Unique Home Crafted
by Grande Interior Design

Living & Dining Room

Central to the family's lifestyle is the prioritization of familial bonds, often inviting relatives and friends into their home. Accordingly, the dining area was envisioned as the heart of the design. Taking into account daily routines, the space was divided to encompass a living area for relaxation and entertainment, a dining section, and a refined bar. This layout fosters moments of intimate conversation while preparing meals. As an aesthetic statement, intricate Continental-style moulding adorns the walls and cabinets, capturing the essence of Continental design. To infuse a lighter touch into this style, the space resonates with neutral shades of light grey, complemented by modern pendant lighting, thereby blending the warmth of two distinct styles.

Master Ensuite, Closet & Study Room

Within the dining area, a seamless transformation unfolds to reveal the master suite, amalgamating the original three bedrooms. This comprehensive layout features a sleeping area, a study room, an ensuite bathroom, and a walk-in closet. Open-plan divisions with distinctive moulding patterns and double-sided cabinets significantly elevate functionality and storage, realizing the owner's vision of a hotel-inspired bedroom. Mirroring the design language of the dining area, the master suite is harmonized with white tones, a velvety headboard design, metallic handles, and elegant tile elements, evoking a refined ambiance.

Nestled in the residential area of Hung Hum, Laguna Verde stands as a renowned residence spanning 2,229 square feet, curated for a family of four from India. Embracing the family's cultural intricacies and religious rituals, the design was meticulously tailored to accommodate their lifestyle. Seeking an ambiance of comfort, designer Maggy Cheung, in collaboration with the clients, opted for a "Light Continental" style as the central theme. The amalgamation of natural and harmonious design elements culminated in a warm and inviting living space, ideal for family and social gatherings.

Foyer

In consideration of the family's cultural and religious ethos, the original storage room near the entrance was imaginatively reimagined as a guest room, connected to a space suitable for Indian rituals. Adhering to Feng Shui principles, a glass screen was introduced to maintain privacy between the foyer and the dining area. The cleverly redesigned entrance of the guest bedroom seamlessly preserved its bathroom functionality while serving the dual purpose of connecting to the guest room.

Daughters' Ensuities

The bedrooms serve as personalized sanctuaries, tailored to reflect the individual styles of the two daughters. The elder daughter's bedroom exudes a cozy simplicity with light wood tones, fostering an earthy and warm ambiance that blends seamlessly with neutral colours. In contrast, the younger daughter's bedroom embraces more feminine elements, highlighted by a colourful bed frame with intricate moulding patterns on the wardrobe, imparting a refined aesthetic. Each bedroom is complemented by an ensuite bathroom adorned with tiles, wood, and delicate pendant lighting, creating a simple yet rich texture. Thoughtfully integrated additional storage cabinets ensure equitable space for both the owners and their children during the spatial reconfiguration.

Guest Ensuite

The storage room near the entrance has been artfully repurposed into a guest room, exuding simplicity to graciously accommodate visiting family or friends. Echoing traditional family ties, the guest room incorporates a niche design, serving a specific purpose in Indian religious rituals. Following the spatial redesign, the guest restroom is seamlessly connected to the guest room via a doorway, transforming it into a suite when guests are present.
