al, Inc., based in Westminster, founded in 2009 to develop innovative ems for the Interventional Radiology and Interventional Oncology markets. The technology is designed to precisely deliver therapeutic agents through a unique catheter with an expandable tip, which allows for forward flow to allow normal blood to carry therapy as close to the tumor as possible in reverse flow, when drugs/embolics are being delivered by the system, the catheter automatically and dynamically expands to fill the vessel, creating a pressure gradient that prevents therapeutic agents from being blocked backflow that might damage the vessel. The Surefire Infusion Systems and Surefire Precision Infusion System have received regulatory approval in the U.S., Europe, Canada, Australia,...
