

Sample Toast by Best Man

Good evening, everyone. For those of you who don't know me, I'm Joe, and I've had the pleasure of knowing Matt since our art school days. Back before we realized that graphic design is not quite as glamorous as the brochures would have you believe.

Matt and I became fast friends and bonded over our love of art, skiing, and a geek-level obsession with Monty Python quotes. He was always so easy to talk to and the kind of friend who show up, always ready and willing to help.

I remember clearly the day he told me about Emily. They'd met at a Halloween party the night before, and he was still laughing about her "Freudian Slip" costume. I saw something light up in his eyes that I'd never seen before.

And when I met her, it made sense. She was shy at first, but once I got to know her, I could see that she was incredibly kind, smart, and funny. And she had this serene quality that put everyone at ease.

It's been such a joy to see them so happy together. They're a perfect balance of extrovert & introvert, spontaneous & planner. And they clearly adore each other.

So please, raise a glass—to a beautiful partnership and a future full of blessings.

Cheers to the newlyweds, Matt and Emily!
