

Sample Vows (Hers)

Beau, when I saw you perform as Linus in the third-grade production of You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown, I had no idea I'd someday be standing at the altar with you. And I couldn't possibly be happier.

In high school, you were the person who made everyone laugh and feel good. To this day you still have that effect—wrapping me and everyone you love in the warmest, brightest light.

During the years we were “just friends,” I came to feel both safe and free with you. And when our relationship deepened, that foundation of trust helped us grow something so strong and beautiful.

I'm grateful we've always communicated openly and honestly, and that we can make each other laugh in the middle of an argument. I love how we take turns being the one freaking out and the one staying calm.

From our quiet, ordinary days at home to discovering exciting new places together, I love sharing life with you. And I can't wait to begin our biggest adventure yet—marriage.

I promise to be fully present when we're together ... and to send you funny dog videos when we're not.

I will continue growing and support you in your growth.

I promise to dance at all your gigs, and brag to my friends about your mad drumming skills.

I can't promise to be perfect, but I will do my best to remember that love is a verb, and to show my appreciation for you every day.

And for as long as I live, I promise to love you unconditionally and unwaveringly.

You're a good man, Beau, and you have my whole heart, always.
