

Global English Content

Crystal clear content for your international communications

More than 1.75 billion people worldwide speak English. At all different skill levels.

They are your employees, your clients, your suppliers and partners.

To achieve your business goals, you need to communicate with them effectively and efficiently, without error or misunderstanding.

You need content that will genuinely engage them.

I can help.

To get a sense of what global English is, or find what's available on the internet, take a look at the Resources page.

For a closer look at how to revise text so that it meets global English standards, visit the Do's & Don'ts page.

If you are looking for help creating or editing content to meet global English standards, go to the Services page to learn what I can do for you, the Contact page to call or email me, or fill out the form below. I'd love to hear from you!

Paul Morin

Name *

First

Last

Email *

Comment or Message *

Submit

Share this:

Nearly 70 countries use English as an official language.

Multinationals that mandate English as their operating language:
Samsung, Rakuten, Nokia, Airbus, Aventis, Renault . . . the list goes on.

Recent Posts

5 Content Tips to Engage Second Language English Speakers

"Be sure to let Susan and I know."

Corpus of Global Web-Based English

Mr. Roger's Language

A story to peruse

Search this site...

Search

Translate

Select Language

S

Powered by Google Translate

Powered by Google Translate

