

Mary Su Edits for John Bua

PAGE 2

It's hard to focus, I can see Gabe. (add apostrophe)

PAGE 3

Yes. Karen here (or) Yes, Karen (add period or apostrophe)

PAGE 4

Consider altering the term "Christian Science" if it does not refer to the religious sect of Christian Scientists.

The way it is phrased could either be 'Christian Science' Majors or 'Christian' 'Science Majors.' Possibly confusing.

"Science Majors who are Christian." Could work.

PAGE 6

It's ok, I am good. (Add apostrophe)

He is in my biology class. (missing word 'in')

PAGE 7

Suggest changing phrase to "counter-cosmic" (adding a dash) to prevent confusion

PAGE 8

Suggest changing phrase to "counter-cosmic" (adding a dash) to prevent confusion

PAGE 9

I think it's eating memories. (Add apostrophe)

PAGE 10

It's always the same frequency. (Add apostrophe and remove unnecessary space)

Suggest changing phrase to "counter-cosmic" (adding a dash) to prevent confusion

"infrared" is one word

"ultraviolet" is one word

Suggest spelling "infra white" and "ultra black" as one word to maintain consistency

PAGE 11

Suggest changing phrase to "counter-cosmic" (adding a dash) to prevent confusion

The term "meta human" on this page is spelled both with and without a space. Suggest deciding which will be the standard to maintain consistency, or even adding a dash instead.

"Think about it. We can gift everyone with metapowers." Suggest either adding a space or a dash in accordance with the decision you make about "meta human" to maintain consistency.

"We can end crime, end starvation, end war, perfect equality." This sentence is confusing, as it could be read to imply ending perfect equality rather than creating it, which I believe is the probably intent of the scientist. Suggest revising it to prevent confusion.

Perhaps "We can end crime, end starvation, end war, and create perfect equality."

PAGE 12

"Su, it's working." (Add an apostrophe)

PAGE 13

"your entire family's fortune" (change to imply ownership)

"No, Karen, don't!" (Add exclamation to avoid repetition and suggest urgency)

"Karen... oh god... She is gone." (Suggest changing commas to ellipses to convey weakness and despair)

PAGE 14

"You've been sleeping for three days!" (Revise to correct the preposition)